Hello, my name is Satnam Singh Parhar, and I am a democratic candidate for City Council District 23 in Northeastern Queens.

For many years I have been a community activist, a highly successful businessman and a philanthropist with a strong record of results.

I am excited about the opportunity to represent all of the constituents of District 23, the most diverse district in the borough. It is important that every community feels like it is getting its fair share of funding and representation.

My number one issue is education. I believe that every child is entitled to the quality care, education and social opportunities that will produce the skills needed for a lifetime of learning and accomplishment.

If elected I will fight to reduce the tax on water and sewage. Our homes have seen an increase of 150 percent in these costs over the past few years. That means every glass of water you drink, every shower you take, costs you more and more each year. That is not fair to homeowners, or to renters who have to pay higher rents to support these increases.

We have a duty to our communities to keep our streets safe and clean, to provide our children with the best possible education, and to offer seniors safe, secure and comfortable chartered centers. Most of all we must see to it that Council District 23 gets its fair share of city funding that allows for economic growth and development, and a higher quality of life.
